Short Passage

Voice: Male

Researchers studying walleye vision found that orange is the color most visible to walleyes, followed by yellow and yellow green. Surprisingly, red is the least visible color. No wonder you find so many orange and chartreuse lures in the tackle boxes of savvy walleye anglers.

Long Passage

Voice: Female, Accent

Fishing is a great way to enjoy the outdoors, have some fun, and catch a tasty meal. Many people first learned to fish by having an experienced angler take them fishing.

The first thing you should know is that getting some gear together, finding a place to fish, and actually catching a fish are all things you can accomplish on your own. The fundamentals of fishing are not complicated. The nuances, on the other hand, are endless. And sometimes the fish just do not bite. It seems everyone who has gone fishing more than once has ideas and advice to offer anyone who will listen. That is ok and talking about fishing can be just as much fun as being out on the water. Regardless of what you do or do not know about fishing when you get started, through experience you can become an accomplished angler. You can improve your skills with each fishing trip you take, each piece of new equipment you try, and any new knowledge you acquire.

It can take considerable time to catch a fish and some days you will not catch any at all. Even so, fishing is usually time well spent. Being outdoors helps relieve stress and provides a nice break from the grind of day-to-day life. Taking a recreational fishing trip can be like a mini vacation - even if it is just a trip of a few hours.

Fishing in a lake from the shore is sit and wait fishing with a bobber and bait. You can begin with some relatively inexpensive equipment; no need for a boat or any special equipment.

Surf fishing from the beach requires heavier tackle, which requires paying a higher cost than lake fishing to get started. Your success can also be quite variable. Some days you will not get a bite. At the other end of the spectrum, you can have productive days that can deliver some real surprises.

Pond fishing with the kids can be a great way to teach your children how to fish. Fishing at a pond can make things easier to manage for you and if there are pan fish around, there is often a good chance you child will be able to catch one.

Party boat fishing on the ocean is fishing without any hassle. You pay to go out on a party boat for a half day or full day and you can use the provided equipment and bait. Depending on the boat and how crowded it is, you are also likely to be able to get some help and be shown how to do things like baiting your hook, casting, and landing a fish.
